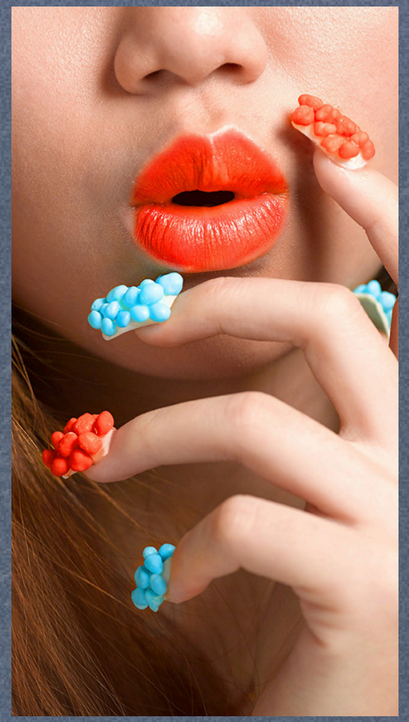
Create Reality Out of Dreams

Creative Portfolio

Hello!

My name is Minh and I’m a multimedia designer with expertise in video production, audio editing, and graphic design.

Passionate about storytelling and visual communication, I bring ideas to life through engaging content for digital and social platforms. With a growth-mindset, I’m constantly on the hunt to improve my skills and upkeep with social media trends.



Photography Projects

Beauty Photography

With the trend of beauty products being more sustainable with more natural ingredients, many companies claim their products to be edible. But are they really? This project reimagined what edible beauty products might actually look like.

Food Photography

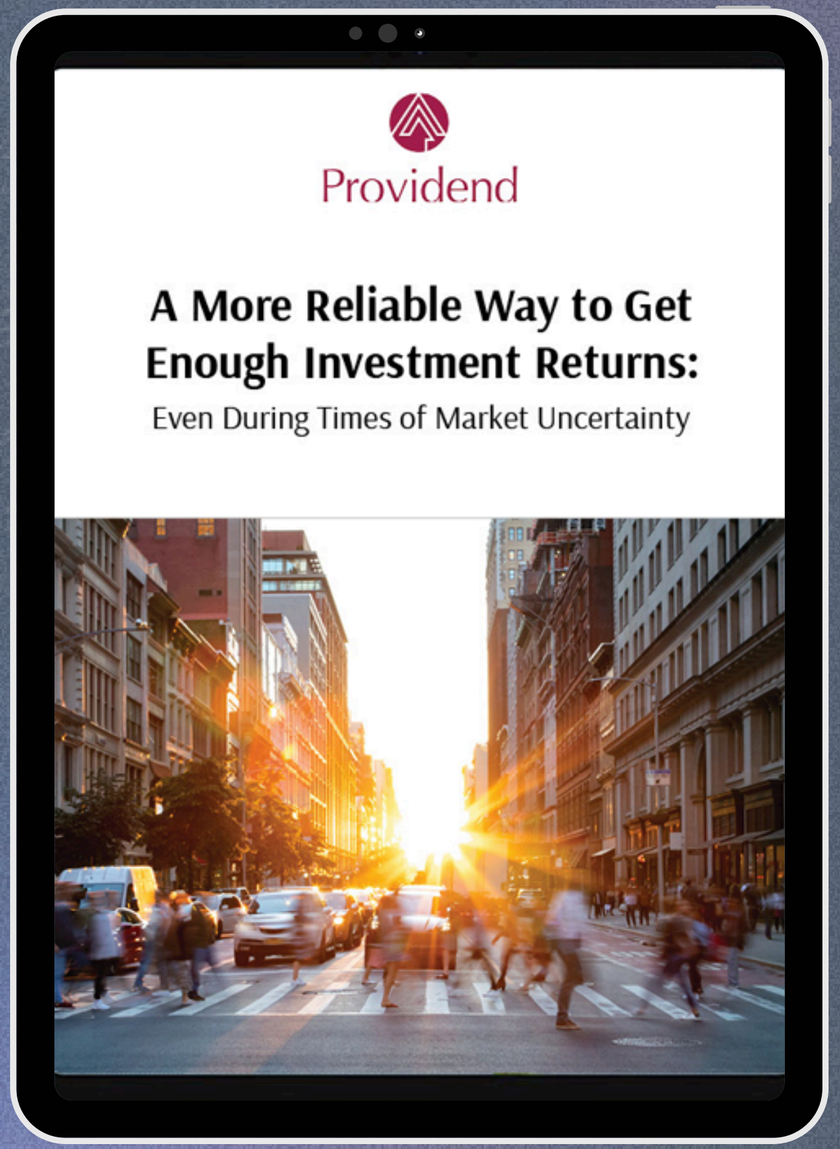
Introducing delicious Vietnamese finger-foods to the world!

From food styling to actual shoot, I want the photos to be bright and dynamic to bring out the vibrancy of the cuisine.

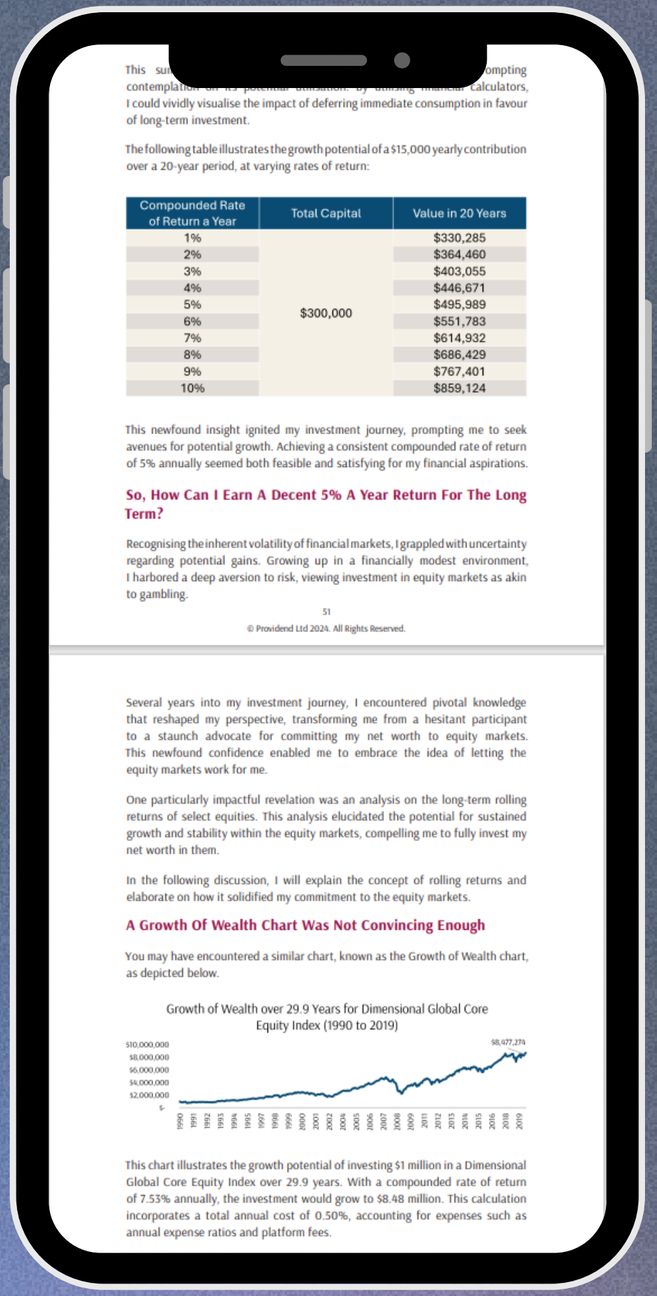
Digital Imaging

What if I'm an editor from Games of Thrones?

I created a fiction screen that I thought could potentially be in the popular show, giving it a more fantastical feel with a floating island, war ships and edited the original background to have a soft and an ethereal look to the whole image.



Book Layout & Design Project



This su ompting contemplation of its potential ramifications. By utilising financial calculators, I could vividly visualise the impact of deferring immediate consumption in favour of long-term investment.

The following table illustrates the growth potential of a $15,000 yearly contribution over a 20-year period, at varying rates of return:

Compounded Rate of Return a Year	Total Capital	Value in 20 Years
1%	$300,000	$330,285
2%		$364,460
3%		$403,055
4%		$446,671
5%		$495,989
6%		$551,783
7%		$614,932
8%		$686,429
9%		$767,401
10%		$859,124

This newfound insight ignited my investment journey, prompting me to seek avenues for potential growth. Achieving a consistent compounded rate of return of 5% annually seemed both feasible and satisfying for my financial aspirations.

So, How Can I Earn A Decent 5% A Year Return For The Long Term?

Recognising the inherent volatility of financial markets, I grappled with uncertainty regarding potential gains. Growing up in a financially modest environment, I harbored a deep aversion to risk, viewing investment in equity markets as akin to gambling.

Several years into my investment journey, I encountered pivotal knowledge that reshaped my perspective, transforming me from a hesitant participant to a staunch advocate for committing my net worth to equity markets. This newfound confidence enabled me to embrace the idea of letting the equity markets work for me.

One particularly impactful revelation was an analysis on the long-term rolling returns of select equities. This analysis elucidated the potential for sustained growth and stability within the equity markets, compelling me to fully invest my net worth in them.

In the following discussion, I will explain the concept of rolling returns and elaborate on how it solidified my commitment to the equity markets.

A Growth Of Wealth Chart Was Not Convincing Enough

You may have encountered a similar chart, known as the Growth of Wealth chart, as depicted below.

Growth of Wealth over 29.9 Years for Dimensional Global Core Equity Index (1990 to 2019)

This chart illustrates the growth potential of investing $1 million in a Dimensional Global Core Equity Index over 29.9 years. With a compounded rate of return of 7.53% annually, the investment would grow to $8.48 million. This calculation incorporates a total annual cost of 0.50%, accounting for expenses such as annual expense ratios and platform fees.

PROLOGUE

ACHIEVING CONTENTMENT IS THE GREATEST GAIN

September 2023 marks the 25th anniversary of my career in wealth advisory. Time really flies. I had a good career, not that it was worry-free. Instead, it was all the crises that I have gone through that made it good because I learnt so much through them and the feeling of surviving and supporting clients through these difficult periods made my journey meaningful. There were many pivotal moments but the one which was most significant happened sometime in 2010, just after the Global Financial Crisis (GFC) when many investors lost their wealth.

I remembered vividly that I was walking outside of the McDonald's restaurant near the Tampines Bus Interchange when suddenly, an inner voice spoke to me. It went like this: "Money has been used as a weapon of mass destruction to destroy many lives in the western world. It is now coming to the East. You have the knowledge, skills and license (our MAS license), what are you going to do about it?". As a result of that epiphany, Providend's Philosophy of Sufficiency was birthed. At the heart of this philosophy is contentment. Contentment is when you no longer crave or desire anything that you do not have. But it is not a passive acceptance of your situation. Rather, it is an active pursuit of things that are most important to you knowing that you cannot have everything. It is a conscious choice to enjoy, appreciate and accept what you have, while giving up the cravings for things that you do not have. So, it requires you to know what is most important to you. Since then, the way we plan and invest for our clients is anchored on the Philosophy of Sufficiency. So how is this philosophy expressed in the way decisions are made?

Insurance Planning

The primary purpose of insurance is for protection against loss of income due to death, disability, a medical crisis as well as paying for huge medical expenses. So while you should buy as much insurance coverage as you need, please pay as little premiums as you can using term insurance. Many have told me that they

Investment eBook Layout

There is a lot of misinformation about investments out there. This eBook aims to clear any confusion and empower you with the knowledge that prioritises reliable returns over chasing unrealistic gains.

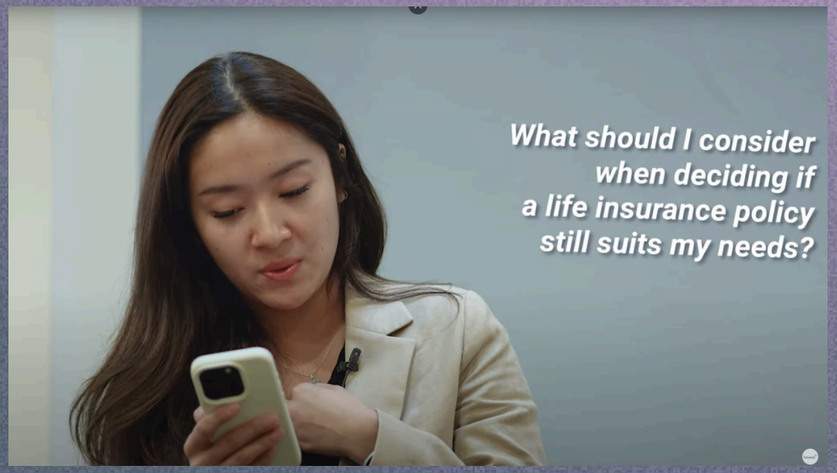
The layout of this ebook is meant to be simple, with slightly bigger font size to aid with the readability, especially since the content could be quite technical. There are no additional decoration in the layout to keep the file size small so to improve the downloading rate.

Video Projects

Insurance Video Series

This video series is designed for working adults aged 25-35 who may not be financially literate. Its goal is to educate this audience in an engaging and accessible way on essential insurance topics, empowering them to make informed decisions that positively impact their lives.

I am responsible for the end-to-end production of this series, from brainstorming key discussion points for each episode to filming and overseeing the editing process. As this is a new series for a relatively young company, I closely followed the brand guidelines to maintain consistency while crafting content that balances a fun yet professional tone.



Internal Profile Video Series

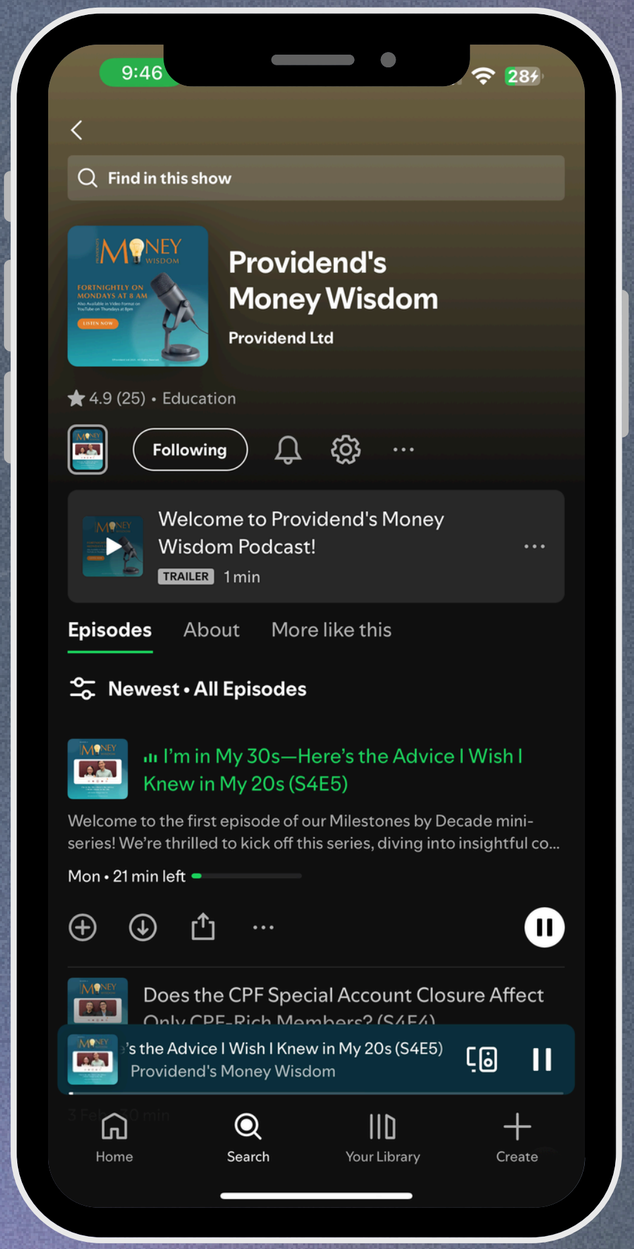
This video series is designed for potential clients, this is to highlight the individuals who are client-facing, their personal stories, beliefs and aspiration for their clients.

I am responsible for conducting pre-recording interviews with the talent, crafting compelling scripts that highlight their stories, and overseeing the filming and editing process. Since this series focuses on personal branding, I ensure that each individual is dressed professionally while maintaining a natural and approachable presence. Additionally, I design the set to be both professional and warm, creating a welcoming atmosphere that resonates with potential clients.

External Interview Video Series

A series of interview videos featuring external guests sharing their unique journeys and insights on what 'living the good life' means to them.

I am responsible for developing interview questions, coordinating with external guests, and overseeing the filming and editing process. This series is designed to showcase authentic conversations, so I ensure a warm and inviting setup that encourages guests to share their stories openly and meaningfully.



Podcast Project (Audio & Video)

Podcast (4 Seasons)

This podcast aims to help audience to gain clarity in their life decisions and make wise financial choices to support them. Started in 2021 as audio-only podcast, this evolved into a audio-video podcast.

I am responsible for crafting insightful questions on trending topics, ensuring high-quality studio sound, and editing the audio for a polished and engaging listening experience. In addition, I also design all the graphics related to this podcast and short-form videos.

Podcast Video

Starting in 2024, the podcast set up has been upgraded for better sound recording and enable video podcast recording.

I was responsible for setting up the studio and mending all the equipment.
